Opening

The rustic charm, banyan trees, ancient wells, and serene communal courtyards, all stand as cherished landmarks etched within the depths of our hearts about our homeland. Here, lullabies from our grandmothers and mothers still linger, folk songs resonate, and verses celebrating village bonds and cultural beauty endure. In the relentless pursuit of innovation and sustainable development, Vietnam has ardently fostered economic growth in agritourism, nurturing rural areas, and nurturing eco-tourism, all geared towards elevating the quality of life for our rural residents.

As we embrace this wave of progress in the new countryside, the People's Committee of Hanoi introduces rural and eco-tourism destinations in Hanoi. This offers visitors an opportunity to learn and immerse themselves in the rhythms of rural life, to meld into the peaceful cadence of existence, and to listen to the harmonious 'song' sung by nature and humanity.

*"In my village, where lush bamboo groves sway,
The Tô Lịch River meanders through the hamlet's way.
By the banks, rows of lychee and longan trees hold sway,
Below the river's surface, fish frolic and play."*

- Anonymous poem -

In these unique rural tourism destinations in Hanoi, as introduced within this publication, travelers will 'eavesdrop' on narratives that echo through time about centuries-old artisan villages, 'harmonize' with folk melodies at traditional cultural villages, and 'experience' the serene tunes of the wind 'whispering' amidst tranquil, verdant hills and mountains.

We ardently wish that agritourism and rural tourism, as outlined in the development vision for our capital city and our entire nation will become increasingly diversified, distinctive, actively contributing to the steadfast construction of our new countryside. May these endeavours bring forth prosperity and sustainable growth for our community of residents and the travellers who venture to Hanoi.

VILLAGE TALES, CRAFTSMAN STORIES

The traditional craft villages of Vietnam are not just places where exquisite handicrafts are produced; they are also vibrant portraits of the life and soul of the Vietnamese people. Exploring each craft village is like taking a journey back in time, where travelers can listen to ancient stories through every alley, roofs, and the skillful hands of Vietnamese artisans. Join us in discovering and experiencing each craft village in Hanoi, and in doing so, gain a deeper understanding of the diversity and richness of Vietnamese culture.

1. Ornamental Plant Village

HÔNG VÂN

Address: Hong Van Commune, Thường Tín District, Hanoi

Nestled in the heart of Thường Tín District, the Hong Van Artistry Village of Flora, a mere 20 kilometers to the south of Hanoi's bustling center, awaits your arrival. As a riverside region with a rich historical tradition linked to the legend of Chử Đồng Tử - Tiên Dung (one of the Four Immortals in Vietnamese folklore), Hồng Vân boasts a cultural heritage and is renowned for its agricultural products, especially ornamental plant cultivation. In the early 2000s, leveraging the fertile alluvial soil, the people of Hồng Vân vigorously developed the ornamental plant cultivation industry, primarily supplying the inner city areas of Hanoi. Transforming from an agricultural commune, the craft village of Hồng Vân has evolved towards ecotourism, focusing on the cultivation of ornamental plants and combining agriculture with tourism and services.

Moreover, our dear guests can partake in the extraordinary "Day as an Artisan" experience, an opportunity to collaborate with the village's skillful artisans, unleashing your creative spirit as you personally craft, sculpt, mold, and christen your very own botanical masterpieces. In 2023, Hanoi City's People's Committee proudly acknowledged the Hong Van Countryside Tourism and Services Point as a 4-star OCOP product, nestled in the realm of "Community Tourism Services and Enchanted Destinations."

2. Pottery Village BÁT TRĂNG

“Tinh hoa di sản từ đất Mẹ”

Địa chỉ: Xã Bát Trạng,
huyện Gia Lâm, Hà Nội

*“In the heart of time, a village steeped in history lies,
Where the potter’s wheel bestows blessings fit for kings’ eyes.
Crafting wood to stoves, a skilled hand’s gentle sway,
From river’s clay, porcelain art takes shape in a unique display.”*

written by Dang Huy Chu

Bat Trang, the venerable Ceramic Village, nestled in Bat Trang Commune, Gia Lam District, Hanoi, is tracing its roots back over a thousand years, emerging in the 14th and 15th centuries. Within this artisanal enclave, a symphony of fired clay comes to life. Yet, it's the ceramic bricks and pottery, adorned in elegance, that claim fame above all. These bricks, celebrated not just for their meticulous artistry, but also for their exclusive dimensions and colors, set a singular standard, unmatched by any other craft across the land. The distinctive clay composition of Bát Trạng pottery is created from a mixture of sand and silt from the Red River. The pottery is fired at relatively high temperatures ranging from 1250 to 1320 degrees Celsius, resulting in products with high durability and deep, rich enamel colors, embodying the unique characteristics of ancient pottery. Bát Trạng ceramics exhibit colors that are warm and refined, featuring intricate and meticulous hand-drawn patterns that closely connect with the Vietnamese cultural aesthetic.

3. Craft Village

CHUYÊN MỸ

Lacquerware and Mother-of-pearl inlay

Address: Chuyên Mỹ Commune, Phú Xuyên District, Hanoi

Mother-of-pearl inlay and lacquer artistry, a craft that's hailed as the cradle of Vietnam's artisanal splendor. From the tiniest seashells and minuscule pearls, the skilled artisans of Chuyen My create intricate patterns that defy intricacy and complexity. This craft goes beyond mere carving, grinding, and assembling within predetermined molds; it's a meticulous process that involves numerous stages to produce a complete work of mother-of-pearl inlay and lacquer art. Each seashell possesses its unique allure – the dark, petite wings contrasting with the thick, veined shell, while the nacre inside shimmers, resembling a radiant rainbow. In tandem with seashells, red snail shells, with their luxurious hues, are considered precious materials used to craft picturesque landscapes, phoenix wings, dragon wings, and intricate motifs on the resplendent silk paintings of kings and royalty.

*“Crafted masterpieces,
a millennium in the making.”*

4. Tailoring Craft Village

VÂN TỪ

Address: Vân Từ Commune, Phú Xuyên District, Hanoi

Inheriting and developing the traditional values passed down through generations, the people of Van Tu have journeyed to Hanoi, not only to earn a livelihood but to enrich their homeland and their nation with the art of silk weaving. With a heritage spanning centuries, this place has nurtured countless gifted artisans. Keeping pace with market trends, these artisans don't just stop at honing their skills; many families and small-scale producers have also established successful business models, turning into renowned companies with a strong market presence. The products of Van Tu have reached various provinces, cities across the country, the region, and even the global stage.

HẠ THÁI

Lacquer Village

Address: Duyên Thái Commune, Thường Tín District, Hanoi

Legend has it that the craft of lacquerware in Ha Thai dates back to the 17th century when it was primarily an art of embellishing objects. While not the birthplace of Vietnamese lacquer art, Ha Thai was revered for its multitude of highly skilled and creative artisans. In the early 1930s, Vietnam's pioneering artists, who had studied at the Indochina School of Fine Arts, embarked on a quest to explore new materials such as eggshells, shells, and bamboo nodes, and most notably, they introduced a unique lacquer polishing technique that gave birth to authentic lacquer paintings. The terms "lacquerware" and "lacquer paintings" emerged during this period. These lacquer paintings employ traditional lacquer materials like lacquer sap and lacquer varnish as binding agents, along with various pigments, silver foil, gold foil, and seashells, all meticulously applied to a canvas of dark hues.

THUY ỨNG

Horn Comb Craft Village

"Oh, young lady with the verdant sash so bright,
To Thuy Ung, with you, my heart takes flight.
Thuy Ung boasts of talents, rich and right,
Cool ponds and the craft of horn combs in plain sight..."
Address: Hoa Binh Commune, Thường Tín District, Hanoi

The Thuy Ung Horn Comb Craft Village, nestled in Hoa Binh Commune, Thường Tín District, Hanoi, resides near Provincial Road 427, merely 3 kilometers from the heart of Thường Tín District. The name Thuy Ung first graced in 1701, during the reign of Le Hy Tong, under the Chinh Hoa era. This village has long been celebrated for its craft of horn comb-making, expertly fashioning combs from buffalo and cattle horns. Today, the artisans of Thuy Ung not only produce distinctive horn combs but also create a myriad of exquisite horn-based artistic products. These products, characterized by their quality and stunning designs, both preserve tradition and cater to customer tastes. The range includes jewelry, household items, home decor, and massage tools, serving the domestic market and finding appreciation worldwide. Across centuries, the craft of horn comb-making in Thuy Ung Village continues to be passed down and flourish from generation to generation.

VẠN ĐIỂM

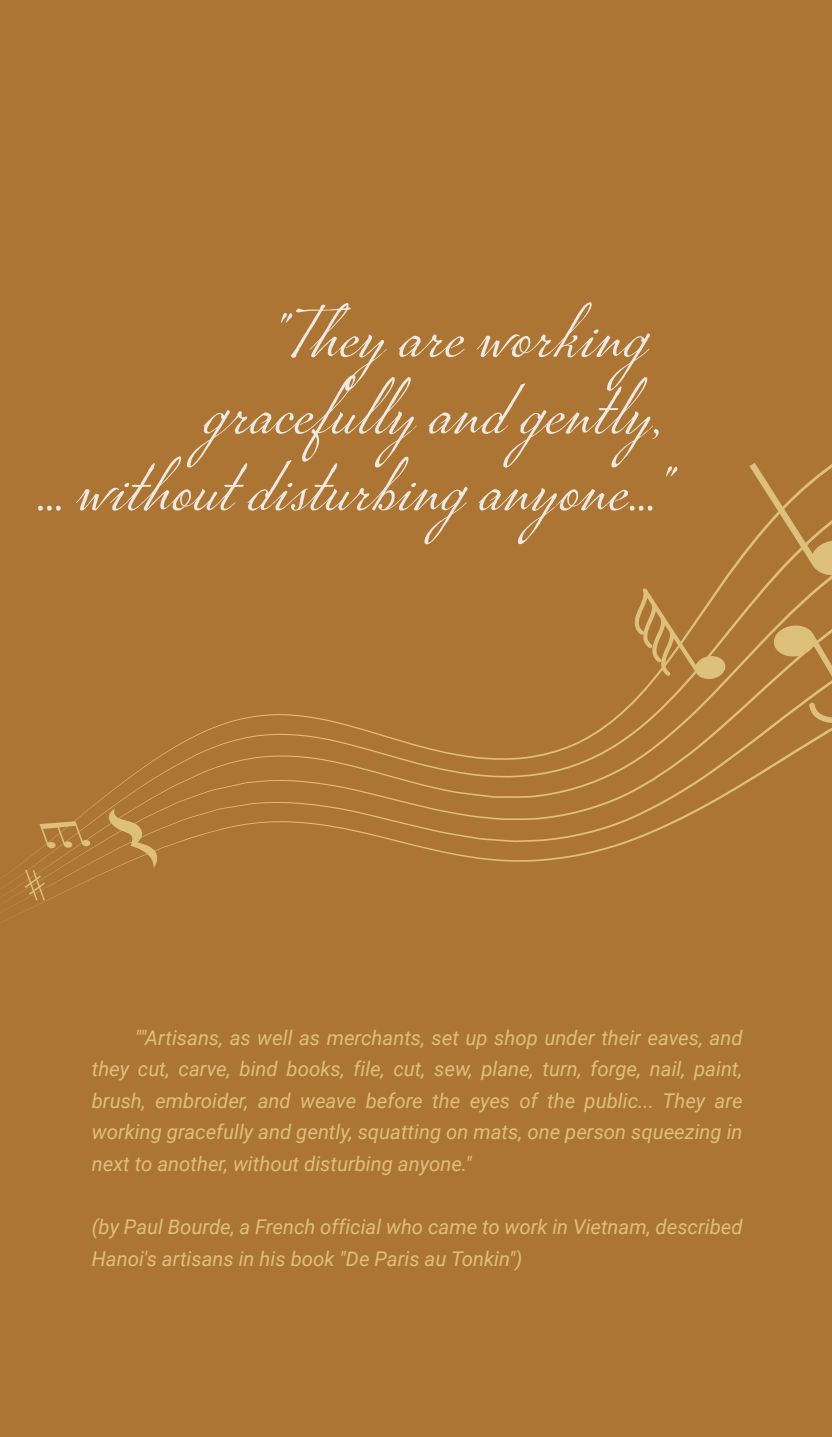

Premium Woodcraft Village

Address: Vạn Điểm Commune, Thường Tín District, Hanoi

Van Diem Commune is located in the southeast of Thường Tín District, within the boundaries of Hanoi. The commune boasts a railway station, Do Xa, traversed by National Highway 1A and Provincial Road 429. Notably, it's well-connected through the Phap Van – Cau Gie Expressway, with the Van Diem interchange, making it exceptionally convenient for economic, cultural, and social development. A standout industry here is the production of high-end woodcraft. The village of Van Diem stands as the largest within the commune and occupies a central position. It's an ancient village with a history dating back to the era of the Hung Kings, brimming with rich historical traditions. The traditional craft of premium woodcraft in Van Diem has endured for centuries, to the extent that residents can't recall a time when it wasn't part of the village's identity. Despite the nation's many ebbs and flows, the village's people continue to proudly preserve and promote the values of the cherished craft from generation to generation.

*"They are working gracefully and gently,
... without disturbing anyone..."*

"Artisans, as well as merchants, set up shop under their eaves, and they cut, carve, bind books, file, cut, sew, plane, turn, forge, nail, paint, brush, embroider, and weave before the eyes of the public... They are working gracefully and gently, squatting on mats, one person squeezing in next to another, without disturbing anyone."

(by Paul Bourde, a French official who came to work in Vietnam, described Hanoi's artisans in his book "De Paris au Tonkin")

Part 2

FOLKLORE CONNECTION

The journey to explore folk tourism destinations takes travelers to ancient villages in Hanoi, where traditional cultural beauty has been preserved through generations. Each village carries its own uniqueness and paints a vivid picture of Vietnamese folk culture. Let's immerse ourselves in the rhythm of folklore, listening and gaining a deeper understanding of distinctive stories, exquisite art, and the simple life of these traditional villages. "Folklore Connection" is an opportunity for travelers to discover, accompany, and share their love with the people and the land of Vietnam.

1. Ancient Village of

ĐƯỜNG LÂM

Address: Duong Lam Commune, Son Tay Town, Hanoi

Located just 4 kilometers from Sơn Tây Town, Đường Lâm comprises nine villages: Mông Phụ, Đông Sàng, Đoài Giáp, Cam Thịnh, Cam Lâm, Phụ Khang, Hà Tân, Hưng Thịnh, and Văn Miếu. With a history spanning over 1,200 years, Đường Lâm is a piece of "sacred land that nurtures talents," Has given birth to many heroes such as King Ngô Quyền, Great Lord Bồ Cái Phùng Hưng, and the intrepid explorer Giang Văn Minh. This ancient village exemplifies traditional Vietnamese villages, preserving numerous communal houses, pagodas, temples, shrines, family chapels, and hundreds of traditional houses, representing the local architecture of the Red River Delta region. Many of these ancient houses remain well-preserved in villages like Mông Phụ, Cam Thịnh, Đoài Giáp, and Phụ Khang, showcasing traditional architectural features, constructed from wood, laterite stones, and tile roofs, with both interior and exterior designs in their original forms. Đường Lâm is also renowned for its local specialties, such as Mía chickens, Đường Lâm sugarcane, lotus feasts, Rí rice, Sọc rice, Sòi rice, soy sauce production, rice flour candy, and traditional roasted pork with crispy skin.

2. Folk Tourism Destination

HẠ MỠ

Address: Hạ Mỗ Commune, Đan Phượng District, Hanoi

Hạ Mỗ, situated in the district of Đan Phượng, is a typical district in the construction of the new rural area of Hanoi. The elders of Hạ Mỗ's ancient village hold the folk verses dear to their hearts: "Our village, an ancient regal domain, Our people, the former monarch's faithful subjects... This land, once the ancient capital, The people here, loyal through ages." With these words of pride, they welcome travelers from afar, offering a unique and meaningful journey. Spending a leisurely weekend exploring Hạ Mỗ is highly rewarding, as it is rare to find a riverside ancient village with seven historical relics, each bearing the imprints and traces of history. Walking along the spacious, clean, and breezy roads, you'll experience a truly distinctive and captivating "village tour" that is second to none.

ĐẠI ÁNG

Address: Đại Áng Commune,
Thanh Trì District, Hanoi

Đại Áng became one of the first communes in Hanoi to achieve the standards of the New Countryside Program in 2013. The local residents of Đại Áng were elated and celebrated this recognition, making it an appealing tourist destination in Thanh Trì District. The tourist attractions in Đại Áng include Đại Áng Communal House, Thiên Phúc Pagoda, the Nguyệt Áng Village's Scholarly Culture area, Nguyệt Áng Communal House, Vĩnh Thịnh Communal House, Thanh Dương Pagoda, Hoàn Sơn Temple, Linh Linh Temple, Ứng Linh Pagoda, Vĩnh Trung Communal House. Among these, 9 sites have been classified as national historical monuments, and one is recognized at the city level. This spiritual and experiential tourism circuit draws visitors to explore and learn about the rich cultural history of the region. In your journey to discover Đại Áng, you'll have the opportunity to visit the traditional conical hat-making village of Vĩnh Thịnh, which has a history spanning centuries. Through the collective efforts of the local residents and the active participation of government authorities at all levels, Vĩnh Thịnh's conical hat-making industry has preserved its distinct characteristics and embodies the cultural and historical values of the ancient Kinh Kỳ land.

*“Hanoi, once again,
unveils its serene rural soul...”*

“...As the concrete canyons of modernity take a step back in the gentle drizzle, and the rush of motorbikes and cars surrenders, Hanoi, once again, unveils its serene rural soul. The city’s temples and remnants of ancient hamlets, long veiled from sight, now emerge: elderly neighbors leisurely embark on their pilgrimages, and the elusive scent of incense, once eclipsed by the city’s cacophony, now dances freely in the breeze. The raucous urban clamor quiets, replaced by the melodious cadence of warm greetings.”

(From the enchanting words of Nguyễn Trương Quý, in the tome “Hanoi: The Everyday Extraordinary”)

of culture, ecology, and entertainment"*

"The land, like time, stays youthful, keeps renewing itself, bestowing upon us its gifts. The babbling brook, the rustling leaves, the melodious birdsong... Could it be that the land's words beckon us, speak to us, share their thoughts, and comfort us in the year of lost lychee orchards? Our sun-kissed fields glisten, while the birds weave the earth's aged brown into the deep blue sky with soaring melodies. The land seems to take flight, to ascend into the soul of people, into their eyes when they look up, the shadow of birds may vanish, but their joyful spirit remains."

(by Writer Bang Son in his book "The Epicureans of Hanoi")

"The land, like time, stays youthful, keeps renewing itself, bestowing upon us its gifts."
